Osteology Foundation

William V. Giannobile elected as next Osteology Foundation President

William V. Giannobile, currently President elect and serving since 2007 in the Osteology Foundation Board will become President of the Osteology Foundation by June 2019 for the next two years.

William Giannobile gained his initial degree at the University of Missouri in Kansas City and his Certificate in Periodontology and Doctor of Medical Science at the Harvard University in Boston. He is currently the Najjar Endowed Professor & Chair of the Department of Periodontics and Oral Medicine at the University of Michigan School of Dentistry. He is also a Professor of Biomedical Engineering at the College of Engineering and serves as the Editor-in-chief for the Journal of Dental Research, the official journal of the International Association for Dental Research.

“Expanding the global presence of the Osteology Foundation”

When asked about his thoughts on the election, Giannobile said: “I feel very privileged and honoured by the Board in recommending me to serve as President to lead the Osteology Foundation for the next two years. I will be doing my best to follow our outstanding Presidents in Professors Christoph Hämmerle and Mariano Sanz, who have been excellent role models in setting a strong direction for the Osteology Foundation”. The focus of his tenure will be to implement the strategic plan that the Osteology Board has recently defined: “A key aspect is to expand our global presence in reaching out to our global partners especially in Asia, South America, Africa and the Middle East regions. We will also work to develop our well-established presence in Europe and North America. We will build on our progressive programmes in research, such as the Osteology Research Academy courses, and on our education programmes, such as our National and International Symposia.”

Please join us in congratulating William V. Giannobile on his new position on the Foundation’s Board. The CV of William Giannobile can be found here:

ABOUT THE OSTEOLGY FOUNDATION

The Osteology Foundation's motto is 'Linking Science with Practice in Regeneration'. The foundation was established in 2003 and its core activities include funding research projects and organising national and international symposia across the world. In recent years, the Foundation has expanded its focus. Today, it also offers courses and textbooks specifically for researchers, as well as the online platform THE BOX, which connects practitioners and scientists in the field of oral tissue regeneration worldwide and provides them with tools and information.
